Climbing the steps of the rock even more so – this is a steep climb involving several thousand steps. Those not wanting or able to climb may enjoy the fine park-like water and boulder gardens at the base, which offer more views of the rock. For climbers, the first treat is the superb Apsara frescoes about halfway to the summit. A final ascent through two enormous rock lion's paws brings you to the summit, with its rock foundations and sweeping views of the surrounding jungles and countryside.

Please note: The climb is only suitable for those with good fitness; plenty of water and sun protection should be carried. In the afternoon enjoy free time to relax by the hotel pool - or join your tour leader for a visit to the deserted forest monastery of Ritigala, with its famously ornate "urinal stones".
